Context

Historical Note

Encircled by hostile neighbour states there has been little room for an independent peace movement in Israel for years; after the war of 1967 however the number of peace activists increased gradually and the peace movement, with the Shalom Achshav (Peace Now) movement as one of its main constituents, grew stronger after the Lebanon war in 1982; one of these peace activists is Adam Keller (born in 1955), who has more than once been imprisoned because of his refusal of military service; Keller has been involved in various peace organizations and action committees from 1969 and he is editor of The Other Israel, newsletter of the Israeli Council for Israeli Palestinian Peace (ICIPP), from its foundation in 1983; he has also been involved in contacts, which were illegal at the time, with representatives of the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO); he is author of 'Terrible Days. Social Divisions and Political Paradoxes in Israel' 1987.

Accrual 2011: international correspondence of 'The Other Israel' 1990-2010.

Arrangement

The documents were sent by Adam Keller to the IISH periodically since the 1980s, the last set in 2007. There was no arrangement whatsoever in the packages, so all the documents had to be sorted out. The first part of this list was made by Adam Keller himself. His classification of movements, organizations and subjects was largely followed in the later supplements. The collection also contains correspondence by Adam Keller, Toma Sik (Shick), Beate Zilversmidt and other persons, as well as a large part of the archives of The Other Israel. These documents have not been separated from this collection, their present description is only preliminary. For the most part the documents are in Hebrew, but there are also many in English, Arabic and other languages. Dates in these lists are only given for the documents dated according to the Christian era. Periodicals were transferred to the library of the IISH; posters, stickers, photographs and buttons to the audiovisual department.
